A KEEPSAKE BIRTH CHART FOR THE PEOPLE WHO LOVE MILA

A LETTER FOR THE FAMILY

Welcome, Little One

To everyone who loves Mila: this little book is a portrait of the sky over Utrecht on 12 June 2025, the day Mila arrived. At that moment the Sun was in Gemini and the Moon in Capricorn, with Gemini rising on the eastern horizon. The Moon itself was a full moon. For thousands of years people have looked at skies like this one and wondered about the gifts and the tender places a new person carries with them.

Nothing in these pages decides who Mila becomes. Children grow in their own surprising directions, shaped most of all by love, play and the people around them. Read this as a gentle lens: notice what rings true, smile at what does not yet, and come back to it as the years go by. Each section ends with a small idea for how you might support Mila, and a one-page cheat sheet near the end gathers them all together.

THE BIG THREE

The Heart of Mila

Three points in a birth chart say the most about a person: the Sun (their core spirit), the Moon (what helps them feel safe and loved) and the Rising sign (how they meet the world).

CORE SPIRIT · THE SUN

Sun in Gemini

21°23' GEMINI

The Bright Little Questioner

Questions, words and the sheer variety of things often light Mila up. Why is the sky blue? What is that bird called? Where does the rain go? You might notice them chattering to their toys, trying out new words with delight and flitting between three games in ten minutes, each one fascinating for a while. Books, songs, silly rhymes and busy playgrounds often feel like a feast.

A mind this nimble asks the grown-ups for plenty of conversation and a good supply of fresh things to explore. It also helps to gently practise finishing what they start, one small step at a time. As the years go by, that curiosity can grow into a gift for language, connection and learning, with Mila often the one who makes everyone laugh.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Keep a basket of rotating books and small puzzles so Mila's curiosity always has something new to land on.

FEELINGS AND COMFORT · THE MOON

Moon in Capricorn

0°13' CAPRICORN

A Quietly Strong Heart

Mila tends to keep feelings close and to find security in structure and capability. Often there is a serious, watchful quality, a preference for knowing the plan, and a quiet satisfaction in managing things on their own. Reliable routines and grown-ups who keep their promises often help them relax more than lots of fuss.

When Mila is upset, they may try to hold it all together, so a gentle reminder that it is fine to cry, and an unhurried cuddle, can mean a great deal. Practical help, such as solving the problem side by side, often follows well. As they grow, this steady heart can develop real resilience, and your warmth shows them that being strong and being soft can go hand in hand.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Keep your promises to Mila, however small, and tell them often that every feeling is welcome with you.

THE BIG THREE, CONTINUED

The First Hello

FIRST IMPRESSIONS · THE RISING SIGN

Gemini Rising

1°33' GEMINI

Hello to Everyone

Bright eyes darting everywhere, Mila often greets a new situation with a flurry of questions and quick smiles. In a waiting room they may chat to the person beside them, point out every sign and colour, and find three things to play with in a minute. Relatives often remark on how lively and expressive your child seems, and new places tend to feel like puzzles waiting to be explored rather than something to fear.

All that brightness can scatter attention, so the adults around them may need to help gather the threads, gently bringing a busy mind back to one thing at a time. Variety tends to keep them content, while long waits test their patience. Over the years, that natural friendliness and quickness may mature into a real talent for connecting people and ideas.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Pack a small bag of surprises, like a notebook or a puzzle card, so Mila has something new to explore whenever waiting stretches on.

SUN OPPOSITION MOON

☉ ☍ ☽ · orb 8.8°

Two Sides of One Heart

With the Sun and Moon pulling in different directions, Mila may sometimes feel two wishes at once: wanting to be bold and wanting to be held, longing to join in and needing quiet. You might notice quick swings between these, especially at the end of a long or busy day.

This inner conversation can grow into real depth and flexibility. Children with this pattern often become thoughtful about feelings, both their own and other people's. Helping them name each side, without asking them to choose, shows that both parts belong.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Say both feelings out loud, such as part of you wants to go and part wants to stay, so Mila feels understood.

LEARNING, LOVING, PLAYING

How Mila Learns and Loves

Mercury shows how a child takes in the world and shares what they think; Venus shows what delights them and how they make friends; Mars, on the next page, shows their energy and play.

LEARNING AND TALKING · MERCURY

Mercury in Cancer

6°12' CANCER

Learning by Heart

Mila often learns best when feelings and memory are woven in. You might notice them recalling the exact song you sang at bath time months ago, or a story told by a relative, down to the tiny details. Information tends to stick when it comes with warmth: a cuddle on the sofa with a book, a family tale about when you were small. Their words often carry a lot of emotion, sometimes more than they can yet explain.

This style asks for a gentle tone, because a sharp voice can make their thoughts close up tight like a shell. Grown-ups can help by listening for the feeling behind the words. As Mila grows, that sensitive, retentive mind may become wonderful at remembering, caring and telling stories that touch people.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Share family stories and old photos together, letting Mila ask questions, so learning feels connected to belonging.

DELIGHT AND FRIENDSHIP · VENUS

Venus in Taurus

5°57' TAURUS

A Lover of Simple Comforts

Soft blankets, warm bread, the hum of a familiar song: Mila often finds deep contentment in things that feel good to the senses. Watch and you may see them stroking a velvety toy over and over, lingering over a favourite snack, or swaying happily to music in the kitchen. Affection tends to be steady and physical, a lean against your arm, a long cuddle on the sofa, a small hand that finds yours without asking. Friends are often made slowly, through side-by-side play that turns, over weeks, into real loyalty.

This child may need time to warm up to new people and places, and patience lets their trust grow at its own natural pace. As Mila grows, a deep appreciation for beauty and comfort can become a gift for making others feel at ease, and the friendships they build tend to be lasting ones.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Offer unhurried time with a few well-loved textures, sounds and treats, and let new friendships ripen slowly.

LEARNING, LOVING, PLAYING · CONTINUED

ENERGY, PLAY AND FRUSTRATION · MARS

Mars in Leo

27°05' LEO

Playful Fire

Mila tends to bring big, warm energy to play, putting on shows, leading parades round the living room, roaring like a lion just to hear you gasp. Whatever they want, they tend to chase it with their whole heart, plenty of confidence and a dash of flair. Games of pretend, dancing and anything with an audience can bring out their brightest, boldest self, and they often love being the one in charge of the fun.

Frustration may flare when they feel overlooked or when a game does not go their way, because their pride runs as deep as their joy. Warm attention, a gentle acknowledgement of their feelings and a dignified way to try again often help. As Mila grows, a natural gift for leading can blossom into generosity, inspiring others to join in and shine too.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Notice and name the effort Mila puts in, and give them chances to lead games where everyone has a role.

Growing Up

Two slow planets, shared by many children born around the same time: Jupiter shows where confidence grows easily, Saturn where patience and encouragement matter most.

CONFIDENCE · JUPITER

Jupiter in Cancer

Confidence Close to Home

For Mila, confidence often blooms in the warm circle of home. Helping set the table, tucking a teddy into bed, joining a family ritual that happens every Sunday: being part of the nest tends to make them feel capable and wanted.

You might notice how proud your little one feels when caring for someone else. Small chances to nurture, comfort or help can grow into a generous, steady sense of their own worth.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Invite Mila into small caring tasks at home, like watering a plant or comforting a toy, and thank them warmly.

PATIENCE · SATURN

Saturn in Aries

Patience With Beginnings

Mila may sometimes find it hard when things do not happen quickly enough. Waiting a turn, trying a new skill that refuses to work straight away, or feeling unsure about a first attempt can feel big to them.

This is where your patience matters most. Calm encouragement to try again, and space to feel frustrated without fuss, can slowly help your little one discover a steady, grounded kind of courage that grows quietly over time.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Stay calm and close when Mila feels frustrated at a first try, and gently invite them to have another go.

Chatter, Variety and Company

Mila tends to thrive in a rhythm full of conversation, variety and people. You might notice how they brighten when someone talks with them, sings a song or introduces a new idea. A good day for them often includes chatter at mealtimes, a visit with friends or relatives, a trip to the library, and plenty of little changes of scene.

The household rhythm that helps most is sociable and curious. Reading together, naming things on walks and answering their many questions can feed their busy mind. Your little one may get restless with too much sameness, so small variations, like a new park or a different game, often keep them happy. Because their thoughts can whirl quickly, a quiet chat at bedtime about the day can help them settle.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Talk with Mila through the day, and end each evening with a short, gentle chat about what they enjoyed.

A CARDINAL PACE

The Joy of Beginning

Mila tends to love beginnings. A new game, a fresh box of crayons, the first page of a new book: starting something often fills them with energy. You might notice how readily they take the lead in play, suggesting what everyone should do next or heading off to explore before anyone else.

This pace is full of initiative, and it often thrives when given real chances to choose and start things. Letting your little one decide which activity comes first, or begin a small project of their own, can feel deeply satisfying to them. Because the spark is strongest at the start, gentle support with seeing things through can help too, like returning to an unfinished drawing together. Celebrating their bright ideas, while keeping a soft eye on the follow-through, suits this lively rhythm well.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Offer Mila simple choices about how to start each activity, and gently help them return to finish what they began.

Seen and Seeing

On the night Mila was born, the whole Moon was lit, round and bright, facing the Sun across the sky like two old friends in conversation. In the lunar tradition the Full Moon stands for awareness and relationship: the moment everything is illuminated, seeing clearly and being seen.

You might notice that your little one is especially tuned in to other people, watching faces, mirroring moods and lighting up when someone truly pays attention. Friendships and family bonds often matter a great deal to them, and they may feel pulled between two wishes at once, such as staying close and racing off to play. Talking through both sides helps them find balance. Most of all, they tend to flourish when they feel noticed and appreciated simply for who they are.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Set aside a few minutes each day of full attention, phone away, so Mila feels truly seen by you.

A monthly Moon birthday. Every 29.5 days the Moon comes back to the same phase it showed when Mila was born. Some families like to step outside on those evenings and look up together: a small, free ritual that can last for years.

HOW THE PIECES TALK

A Few Key Conversations

When two planets sit at certain angles to each other, their qualities blend. These are the closest links between Mila's personal planets (the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus and Mars).

MERCURY SEXTILE VENUS

A Love of Stories ● FLOWING

☿ ⚹ ♀ ORB 0.2°

With Mercury and Venus flowing together, Mila may find it easy to express warmth through words. You might notice them saying kind things unprompted, enjoying wordplay or acting out favourite stories with great feeling.

Your little one often loves sharing creativity with others: putting on a little show, drawing a card for a grandparent's birthday or singing in the car. That pleasant, sociable way with language can make friendships easier, and a family habit of storytelling helps it grow richer.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Start a family storytelling habit, taking turns to add a line, and let Mila choose the ending.

MOON TRINE MARS

Brave and Warm-Hearted ● FLOWING

☽ △ ♂ ORB 3.1°

With the Moon and Mars flowing together, Mila may combine feeling and action with real ease. You might notice a protective, plucky streak: comforting a crying friend at nursery, or boldly trying something new when a trusted grown-up is close by.

Your little one often bounces back fairly quickly from upsets and turns emotion into movement, running it off or building something. Active play, nature walks and games with a gentle challenge suit them, and praise for kindness alongside courage helps both qualities grow.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Notice out loud when Mila uses their courage to help someone, so kindness and bravery grow together.

MOON TRINE VENUS

Comfort Through Closeness ● FLOWING

☽ △ ♀ ORB 5.7°

With the Moon and Venus flowing together, Mila may find comfort easily in beauty and closeness: a pretty picture book, a favourite tune, a quiet snuggle with a familiar grown-up. You might notice a sweet, easygoing warmth that draws other children in.

Your little one often helps create a peaceful mood at home, and may enjoy making small gifts or drawings for the people they love. Gently encouraging them to share their own wishes, not only to please others, keeps that lovely warmth balanced.

HOW TO SUPPORT MILA

Display the drawings and small gifts Mila makes, so they see how much their kindness is treasured.

Flowing links (trines and sextiles) tend to feel easy; stretching links (squares and oppositions) bring an inner tension that often grows into a strength with support; blended links (conjunctions) fuse two qualities into one.

BRINGING IT TOGETHER

A Wish for Mila

Mila arrived with a Gemini Sun, a Capricorn Moon and a sky that leans toward air: a little person who may thrive on words, people and ideas. Those are only the first brushstrokes. Every child adds colour of their own, and the most important parts of Mila's story are the ones you write together: the songs at bedtime, the questions at breakfast, the patience on hard days and the laughter on easy ones.

If you keep one thing from this report, let it be curiosity. Watch for the moments when Mila lights up, and the moments when they need a softer landing, and let those guide you more than any chart. One day Mila may enjoy reading these pages too, and hearing about the full moon that shone on the day they were born.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

How Little Sky Works

The method

Mila's chart is calculated from the date, time and place of birth, using the tropical zodiac and Placidus houses, with the same astronomical calculations as our adult birth chart reports. The Moon phase comes from the angle between the Sun and the Moon at the moment of birth: 0° is a New Moon, 180° a Full Moon, and each of the eight phases is centred on its exact angle. Element and pace balances count the Sun and Moon and Rising sign double, as is common practice.

Written for growing

Every paragraph in this report describes tendencies, never fixed traits, and every section ends with a practical idea for supporting Mila. Nothing here assumes anything about Mila's gender, and nothing in it predicts the future: children shape their own story, with a great deal of help from the people who love them.

Reading it well

Read a section, then watch Mila for a week. Where it fits, you have a little extra language for who they are; where it does not, what you see wins. Some families like to come back to these pages at each birthday and notice which parts ring true at which age.

A tiny glossary
